

girls' stories
girls' voices

Girls' Stories
Girls' Voices

The Girl Effect

2012 WORKSHOP - Registration Form
Send by June 15, 2012

Edgewood College presents a summer institute designed to encourage girls in grades 6-9 to find their voices. Researchers and social scientists point to the psychological, social and economic importance of young adolescent girls maintaining and sharing their voices. In their works, Carol Gilligan, Annie Rogers and Mary Pipher describe the loss of girls' voices during their early teens and the consequences of such losses. They each indicate a need for helping this age group of girls see the value in themselves. Participants will deal with these issues using literature, arts, writings and sharing. "The Girl Effect" will be the theme this summer. The five-day workshop will be held at Edgewood College and involves girls grades 6-9. College and high school students will be facilitators for six to eight girls. Lunch will be provided.

When: June 18-22, 2012

Where: Edgewood College

Cost: $25
(scholarships available)

Name: _____

Grade: _____

Address: _____

Phone: _____ Cell: _____

Email: _____

Mail registration form and payment to either of these addresses:

Girls' Stories, Girls' Voices c/o Nancy Nelson
Edgewood College Summer Workshop
1000 Edgewood College Drive
Madison, WI 53711

Girls' Stories, Girls' Voices
PO Box 620263
Middleton, WI 53562